

Searching and Evaluating New Drug Delivery Technologies

Drug delivery stands at the core of any new drug product. In some occasions, the delivery system enables therapeutic modalities, and other times can synergize with drug to create completely new applications. In this presentation, we will discuss novel drug delivery concepts pertaining to particles, energy and materials. Finally we will show examples of industrial approaches to exploring new delivery opportunities related to biomaterials.